Tanner has always gotten what he wants from girls - whether it's the co-ed sitting next to him in class or the scantily dressed groupies that follow his band, Hudson-Nash. There's only one woman immune to his charms, and that's his mother. Tired of Tanner's hard partying, she's waiting for him to grow up and settle down, preferably with a nice girl. When she refuses to finance his tour with the band, Tanner knows he'll have to find a way to change her mind. Grace Roberts is not like most college girls. Shy and bookish, she prefers sneakers to stilettos and never quite mastered the art of taming her mane of unmanageable hair. Guys are not exactly throwing themselves at her, so when Tanner Reed, the hottest guy in school (scratch that, the hottest guy anywhere!) takes an interest in her, it seems too good to be true. Bound by his deception and her girlish hopes, Tanner and Grace will be forced to question everything they believe about each other, and themselves. When these two get together, anything can happen and anyone can get hurt. Anyone can fall in love.

What a waste

By Addictedtomykindle

Not sure what all the 5 stars are about. I really can't believe I finished this. I will say I skipped LOTS of pages. The hero of the story was a cheater pretty much through this whole book. He never redeemed himself in my opinion. The h is awkward and a doormat. Don't waste your time or money on this book.

Tanner and Grace

By Jessica

The story is narrated from both (first person) Tanner and Grace's perspectives. The naivety of Grace and the evilness of Tanner is what kept me captivated. I say evilness loosely because Tanner does have a reason for doing what he does and it makes sense. The character development and story development were very good, most of all it was realistic even her change of appearance. I hate these makeovers that occur in one day, change takes time and the author completely understands how real people react when asked to change.

Surprise!

By whitfield25

Awesome! In the beginning of the story, Grace is such a nice, innocent, young girl trying to finish college. Tanner, on the other hand, is a selfish, self-centered player! To con his parents out of money to go on tour with his band, Tanner devises a plan. One that will destroy Grace if she ever discovers what he is up to. The problem: Tanner never planned on falling in love and he just may lose Grace in the process!
